

POLLUTANT TRANSPORT IN POROUS MEDIA AND WATER TREATMENT TECHNOLOGY

Stefan Balint^{1*}, Agneta Balint²

¹ Faculty of Mathematics and Computer Science

² Faculty of Physics

West University of Timișoara

300223 Timișoara, Bulv. Vasile Parvan 4, Romania

[stefanbalint@gmail.com, balint@physics.uvt.ro]

2000 Mathematics Subject Classification. 35B20

Keywords and phrases. Porous media, membrane, mass transport, water pollution, water treatment.

This talk concerns the following topics:

- A general presentation of the size of water pollution at the level of world and water treatment technology using membranes.
- A non-mathematical presentation of water treatment technology using membranes.
- A mathematical model for the flow and mass transport through a membrane.

REFERENCES

- [1] U. Hornung, W. Jäger, Diffusion, Convection, Absorption and Reaction of Chemicals in Porous Media, Journal of Differential Equations, 92 (1991), pp. 199-225.
- [2] I. L. Auriault, J. Lewandowska, Diffusion, Absorption, Advection, Macro-transport in Soils, Eur. J. Mech. A/Soils, 154 (1996), pp. 681-704.